Lutheran Church Notes

DAKOTA CITY-SALEM
REV. C. R. LOWE.

There is a popular opinion that preachers do not have much to do, and that they have a lot of time going to waste. I do not intend to refute it here. What I want to get at is to have the people of the church and the friends of the pastor see to it that such is not the case. If the above is really the case it is in part the fault of the other folks. Just the other day I was thinking of things I might have done that I did not do. I was at the hospital not so long ago to see the sick, I could very easily have gone to see another sick person, but I didn't. I didn't know she was there. No one had told me about it. When I did find out about it I made a special trip. I could have called upon the bereaved before I did, but I didn't. No one had told me of the sorrow, and the people were surprised I didn't know all about it. There is another sick family I might have called on, but didn't. No one had told me about that one either. I found it out accidentally, then called as soon as it was at all convenient. And so matters go week after week. Folks get sick, and recover and we learn about it a long time after. Some have wondered why the pastor did not call. The reason may be that they did not call the pastor. Some pastors never visit unless they are called. I do not remember having been called to visit the sick in the two and one-half years I have been here, save by a number of folks not connected with any church, and that not for their own. I am graciously received, indeed, when I do call on the sick, which shows how much pastoral services are appreciated. No one forgets to call for the physician, few think to call for the pastor, too. And there are sick souls. But no one asks for the healer thereof. Trials, anxieties, doubts and fears, and people bear them without a chirp. It is not so in the flesh, we complain to the first person who will listen. But none complain at their lack of faith, because of their sorrow for sin, or because of a troubled conscience. Men will consult their agricultural agent about the cultivation of a crop, but few consult their pastor as to the cultivation of their lives in Godliness. Why do you not do these things? Call the pastor, tell him your Christian difficulties, get his help in all ways possible. Then he will surely be busy. He cannot find them out if you do not consult him. At least tell him of sick folks in your home and other people's homes. Everybody work together for the good of all. It is partly up to you.

Salem Ladies' aid will meet next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. L. Helges and do Red Cross work. The serving committee is Mrs. Adolph Bartels, Mrs. Harry Ostermeyer, Mrs. Ernest Runge and Mrs. L. L. Helges. All members and friends urged to be present.

Do not forget that on Wednesday, April 3, Mr. C. H. Weller of the Laymen's Missionary movement is going to address us at Salem at 8 p. m. on some phases of our church work. He is entertaining, instructive and inspiring.

The Herald's Letter Box

Presho, S. D., Mar. 24, 1918.
Dear John: Enclosed find money order in payment of subscription to The Herald. I have purchased a half section of land out here, located about six miles from Vivian, and about twelve miles from Presho. This is a dandy fine country, and I do not know of a locality anywhere that presents a more promising future with reference to land investments. More land exchanges and sales are going on here than in any locality I have been in for some time.

Don't know how long I will be here, but think I will have some wheat sowed soon, then return home and come back here again at harvest time.

With kindest regards to yourself and family, I am

Sincerely yours,
B. G. Harden.

Mr. Broyhill was born December 16, 1857, at Keosauqua, Mo. He was married November 28, 1898, to Mrs. Elizabeth Bullock. Broyhill, from Brighton, Iowa, at the age of twelve years. He was a carpenter by trade, and had followed that occupation until a few months before his death.

Mrs. J. O. Smith, of Laurel widow, and a former resident of this county, has just given her fifth son to the service of the United States. She has two in the navy, two in the field artillery and one in the ambulance corps. There are seven sons and three daughters in the family. The youngest, Connie, 12, and the eldest, Robert, 28, are still at home. The father, a laboring man, died when Connie was a baby in arms. At that time the widow moved from Dakota county to Laurel with her family and proceeded, by the labor of her hands, to earn a living for them. She has worked very hard and her health is broken, but the one eligible son left will probably claim no exemption. She says: "He really wants to go, and I shall not say much against it. I know how it is, I'd like to go myself. It seems a shame to sit here and not be able to do anything when they need help so bad. If Connie were old enough, I'd gladly have him go, too." The family resided in Dakota City some 30 years ago, coming here from Jackson, and lived in a house that stood east of the Barnett hotel. Mr. Smith worked at the painters trade while here.
